Ambulance incident girl, 17, dies

A 17-year-old girl who was seriously hurt when she climbed out of the back doors of a moving ambulance has died.

Jackie Bloy, of Wells in Norfolk, left the vehicle on the A148 at Congham as it headed to the Queen Elizabeth Hospital, King's Lynn, on 19 October.

On Monday a police spokesman said she had died the following day.

Her father, Michel Bloy, said Jackie, who wanted to be a nurse, was a lovely girl who had had some problems and would be sadly missed.

Jackie, who died in Addenbrooke's Hospital in Cambridge, was born in King's Lynn and attended Fairstead School and King Edward VII High School in the town.

"She was an outgoing, lovely, bubbly girl who was full of life and enjoyed spending time with her parents and brother and sister," said Mr Bloy.

"She had a few problems in her short life, but in all her family could not have asked any more of her and she will be sadly missed by her friends and family who loved her very much."
